Abstract

From November 2008 7 partners from 6 European countries are working in the development of a Simulator for learning languages in the sector of hospitality. The project has been a challenge in search of the innovation in the field of language learning for low skilled professionals, specially taking into account that all the partners have previously developed ICT based tools for language learning in the sector, in this case all wanted to create something new and effective. Have we succeeded in our search of innovation? Have we finally found the tool "facilitating" language learning? To which extent is it possible to be innovative and creative in language learning? These questions are high priority in 2009 as the European year of innovation and creativity.
