Alejandra Donoso is a Ph. D. Student at the Spanish Department at Stockholm University. In her thesis she deals with the problems related to linguistic relativity and the expression of motion events in Second Language Acquisition. At the moment she is looking at the typological differences between Swedish and Spanish in order to fully describe how these two languages convey information about static and dynamic events. At the same time Alejandra Donoso works at the Spanish Department as a language teacher and as a supervisor of undergraduate final research papers on the field of Spanish linguistics. She is also currently working with the implementation of the web-based platform Mondo at the Spanish Department where some of the teachers have begun to integrate ICT with pedagogical purposes.

Alejandra Donoso finished her undergraduate program on Linguistics and Spanish Literature at the Catholic University of Santiago, Chile, in 2000, and obtained a Fil. kand. (Bachelor of Arts) at Stockholm University in 2005. She has been working in the field of Spanish Linguistics since then.
