Doris Lindinger completed her studies at Salzburg University specializing in English, German and Psychology.

She is a senior teacher of English at "HAK-II Salzburg" - a secondary school with a strong emphasis on Business and Tourism. It is a "Handels-Akademie" situated in the Austrian City of Salzburg.

Doris has taught English there for a number of years and has developed innovative approaches to the use of ITC in the class-room, having pioneered a special form of blended learning using the Tick-Tack software.

The students in the top "Notebook classes" all have laptops which they take home each night and bring to school next morning. They use them both for their lessons in class and for their homework. They all have the full range of Tick-Tack programs installed.

Doris has attended many ITC workshops and often organizes them, for teachers in her own and other schools. For many years she has set up and supervised student exchanges with schools in a number of countries.
