Patricia Arnaiz is a lecturer at the Teacher Training College in Las Palmas de Gran Canaria University.

Patricia Arnaiz graduated in translation in 1994 and in Modern Languages in 1995. She started her job at university in 1996, and that same year she started her doctoral studies. In 2001 she defended her PhDs Thesis on the role and functions of output in English language learning.

She was involved as coordinator in the ROMEO project, a Teacher Training project funded by the European Commission, from 1997 to 1999. She has also been involved as coordinator and speaker in several in-service training courses organized by the ministry of Education.

She was a tutor for three years in the online Teaching Degree of the University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria.

She's been the author of two textbooks for University students, one for University teachers (in print) and the coauthor of two books, result of the research carried out on the written and oral output of primary students.
