

A Study About Internet-Based Language Learners' Reading Speed

Sevgi Çalışır Zenci, Nurdan Söker, Olcay Saltık, Nilay Girişen, Ferdi Bozkurt, Hülya Pilancı

E-mail: sevgicalisir@anadolu.edu.tr ; nsoker@anadolu.edu.tr ; osaltik@anadolu.edu.tr ;
ngirisen@anadolu.edu.tr ; ferdib@anadolu.edu.tr; hpilanci@anadolu.edu.tr

Anadolu University (Turkey)

Abstract

Speaking, reading, listening and writing are important skills that establishes comprehension and narration. As an individual's native language while learning a foreign language to communicate them to have a healthy required. Reading is a entertainment and learning instrument that people use it frequently. Effective reading can establish a link between memory and comprehension. An important factor here is speed. One of the benefits of Internet based language learning programs for individuals with reading speed is to keep the information in the register. Readers classified as fast or slow reader to read their efficiency depends. The person who learn a foreign language must have effective reading ability. In this study, Turkish Certificate Program that is an internet-based language teaching program the held the records were used in applications and Turkish learners at various levels of reading speed in some results have been explained.