Jan Gejel is a European project manager and a trained multimedia project manager employed at the International Department of the Aarhus Social and Health Care College in Denmark.

Jan Gejel holds a university degree in Language and Media from the University of Aarhus along with a pedagogical practice degree from the same institution.

Jan Gejel is also a certified Multimedia Project Manager from the Aarhus Technical College.

During the last 10 years he has developed and managed numerous European projects on lifelong learning, especially related to empowerment of disadvantaged citizens.

His key competences lie within the intersection field of empowerment learning and the creative use of media and technology.

Apart from being extremely active on the European scene, he is the manager of the College' in house media team, sosuMedia, employing 4 full time media designers and producing web based multimedia for the Danish health care educations and for European cooperation projects.

Jan Gejel is deeply inspired by the learning concepts developed and practiced at the MIT Media Lab in Boston, US, especially by the learning approaches in the Computer Clubhouse Network.

He is one of the key developers behind the BODYexplorer learning game project and has taken the initiative to organize the meeting between education and the computer game industries in Denmark.

Jan Gejel has throughout the last years engaged himself deeply in social and learning projects in many European countries, especially in Spain, Romania and Italy.
