Ronda Zelezny-Green is a Returned Peace Corps Volunteer who has lived on four continents and visited 25 countries. She currently works in higher education providing multicultural education for college students, along with youth leadership workshops for high school women in New England.

She also virtually volunteers for international NGOs based in the USA and in Tanzania, focusing on work with global education, technology usage, and cross-cultural communications.

Prior to now Ronda was an ESL/EFL Educator for four years. Ms. Zelezny-Green has written articles on culture, lifestyles, and current events in the Association for African-American Linguists quarterly newsletter as well as MADA English Journal, the only all-English newspaper in Madagascar. She performs international educational consulting on a freelance basis and specializes in gender, language concerns, ICTs, and Africa. She enjoys reading, swimming, hiking, travelling, and experiencing new cultures.

Ronda is a graduate student in the Master of Arts in Applied Linguistics program with a concentration in foreign language pedagogy at the University of Massachusetts at Boston. She holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Philosophy and Spanish (departmental honours) from Salem College in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Her head and her heart are still in Africa.
