Birgit Brödermann, M.A. is an experienced and specialised consultant in the field of intercultural communication, training course design and language teaching.

In 2005 she started working in the field of transnational cooperation funded by the European Commission and has since been involved as a project manager or coordinator, taking responsibility for the development and dissemination of long-term projects.

She was one of the creators of the International Learning Platform "Altsolem", which she later restructured, adjusted and implemented on the website of Arbeit und Leben Hamburg, a leading further education provider.

Since 2004 Birgit Brödermann has also been a lecturer for French and International Relations at the Hamburg School of Business Administration. She holds the licence as a TELC (The European Language Certificate) examiner for French.

Birgit Brödermann graduated with a Master of Arts degree in French and German Language and Literature from the University of Hamburg in 1987, having spent a one year exchange at the Université Paul Valéry of Montpellier as part of her studies. After working for a couple of years as a director of studies at "Sight and Sound Hamburg" she took an Academic Year in comparative literature at Smith's College in Northampton, Massachusetts, USA.
