Dr. Carmen Foz is senior lecturer in English for Specific Purposes at the Department of English and German Philology of the University of Zaragoza, where she has taught Business English since 1989.

Carmen Foz's current research focuses on the integration of ITC and language learning as well as intercultural studies related to business communication. She is member of the English for Academic and Professional Purposes Research Group, whose latest funded project involves the development of a web-based tool (<http://www.inglescomercial.net>) to assist professionals of Spanish SMEs with their communication in international trade.

Carmen Foz is also taking part in the European commission funded project Decipher, designed to help companies gain an improved understanding of the business culture of the target export markets.

Her academic work has appeared in Word, Revista de Lenguas para Fines Específicos, Specific and International Journal of English Studies, among others. Carmen Foz is also co-editor of the book Teaching Academic and Professional English Online (Bern: Peter Lang, 2009).
